MEMPHIS APPEAL

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1874. TENNESSEES WORST ENERGES. To hear the interminable twaddle of the non-tax-paying croakers, one would naturally suppose that the tax-payers of Tennessee were beasts of burden, ridden at the pleasure of bond-holders. The talk of these demagagues is false, dishonest and injurious. People will not locate in a State which they are Induced to believe by faischood that the taxes are higher in the State they propose to adopt than in the one from which they desire to remove. If States increased in population in proportion to the rate of taxation. Tennessee would soon be overrun with population, as her taxes are lowert has those of any other State. The rate of taxation in Tennessee is only forty cents on the one hundred dollars. This is lower than any State in the Union with the exception of one or two small northern States. To show how other States are taxed, and especially the State of Maryland, we quote what the Bultimore Sun mys: "It is learned that the commissioners of Baltimore county made their levy for the present year on rents. The sum thus paid in New York Tuesday, placing the general tax rate at within the formight after the first of he same figures of 1873-to-wit: three May is variously estimated at from cents on the one hundred doj. thirty to forty millions of dollars. This at the price of repudiation. High tax is perhaps one of the causes of the reis a burden to any people, but low tax | vival of speculative interest and of the is the invariable song of the demagogue. opward movement in stocks began a few Taxes are always oflious, and the time days ago. At the close of the market will never come when taxation will be yesterday stocks were buoyant and considered a blessing. The true policy of the honest people of Tennessee is to There is a large uncovered short interest discourage all hope of avolding pay-day, and to unite in a grand effort to preserve the honor of the State. What an inestimable jewel is public honor! How it street through purchases by permanent helps private credit; how it facilitates investigators." the prosperity of a State; how proud, and bright, and happy it makes her peopie! There is no way to preserve honor in this matter but to pay honest debts, and however the debtor's conscience may be lulled into repose by assurances that there are reasons why he may postpone his obligations, and finally may have reasons for not paying them at all, he will wake up at last to a full conception of his faithlessness and the injury which attaches to it. The worst enemies state, praying only that inquiry to the city council in all the wards except demagagues who persist in a reduction made into their alleged wrongs. We the first, third and ninth. of the State taxes, and in asserting that | cannot find in the representation | It is useless for the State to make any further show of purpose to redeem her pledges, to sustain her credit, to keep up sister States and of foreign countries. Can any man believe that expitalists, looking for Investments, may be persnaded to embark in business in Tennessee if she could repudiate her debt, either by formally renouncing her obligatious, or declaring that while she is willing to pay she is not able to pay?
